Helvetica is a feature-length independent film about typography, graphic design and global visual culture. It looks at the proliferation of one typeface (which will celebrate its 50th birthday in 2007) as part of a larger conversation about the way type affects our lives. The film is an exploration of urban spaces in major cities and the type that inhabits them, and a fluid discussion with renowned designers about their work, the creative process, and the choices and aesthetics behind their use of type.

Helvetica encompasses the worlds of design, advertising, psychology, and communication, and invites us to take a second look at the thousands of words we see every day.

The film was shot in high-definition on location in the United States, England, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, France and Belgium. It is currently screening at film festivals and special events worldwide.

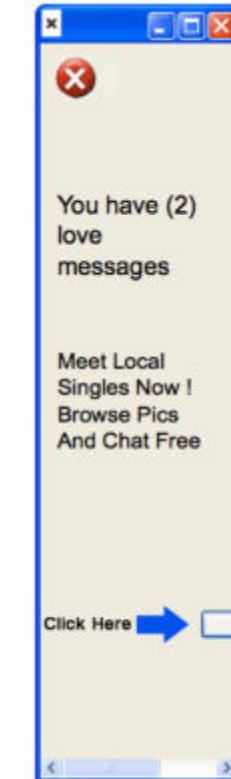

Interviewees in Helvetica include some of the most illustrious and innovative names in the design world, including Erik Spiekermann, Matthew Carter, Massimo Vignelli, Wim Crouwel, Hermann Zapf, Neville Brody, Stefan Sagmeister, Michael Bierut, David Carson, Paula Scher, Jonathan Hoefler, Tobias Frere-Jones, Experimental Jetset, Michael C. Place, Norm, Alfred Hoffmann, Mike Parker, Bruno Steinert, Ottmar Hoefer, Leslie Savan, Rick Poynor, Lars Müller, and many more.

Bye Now Effect

An experiment done for a name-your-own-price restaurant used either the words “bye bye” or “so long” in a piece of text participants were asked to read before naming their price for the meal. Those whose brains were occupied and heard the words “so long” opted an average price of around $32, whereas those who heard “bye-bye” chose a staggering $45.50. The Bye-Now Effect basically makes us much more likely to buy more.

Use Social proof

Experts, celebrities, existing customers, and even the “wisdom of the crowd” can all serve as drivers for how we behave.

“If other people are doing it, it must be right.”

Social proof

Hearing the same positive message several times from different trusted sources can provide the social proof that helps users form a decision.

People rely on social proof more when they are unsure what to do.

New users, people shopping for infrequent or unfamiliar purchases, or people seeking expertise.

Reciprocity

Reciprocation

Can you make users feel they've been done a favour (by the system, or by other users) and want to return it?

This busker's postcards may be 'free', but the social norms of reciprocity mean most people will give him some tip in return

If you don't give up

Hi Marek,

Thanks for trying graze!

We just wanted to confirm that your deliveries have now been stopped.

We've been asked a fair few times 'how do I start getting graze boxes again?', so we've created a couple of links that make it really easy to restart your deliveries...

Two weeks later...

Hi Marek,

I hope you don't mind us getting in touch. If you could spare a moment, we'd love your help with three quick questions.

It even works great on mobile.

It only takes one minute, and as a thank you we'll credit your account with 3 half price graze boxes, if you restart your deliveries.

Thanks for your help,

Thanks for your help with the survey!

As a big thanks from everyone here at graze we'd like to offer you 3 half price graze boxes!

We've saved your ratings and delivery details so it's really easy to get your 3 graze boxes for £1.99 each (instead of £3.99).

yes please - credit my account and restart my deliveries >

no thanks!

p.s. If you'd like to make use of the offer but don't want boxes just yet, just click 'yes please' and push back your deliveries until you are ready to graze again (you can do this from your deliveries page).
